10 Signs That Scammers Have You in Their Sights

We all spend so much of our time online these days. It's estimated that the average adult spends the best part of seven hours per day glued to their screens. When we're finished with work, we're hitting up our apps to watch TV, do our online banking, play games, socialize with friends – even visit the doctor. Cybercriminals and fraudsters know all this. They know we're comfortable with digital interactions, and that we routinely hand over personal and financial information to the organizations we interact with online. And they've devised a variety of ways to get ahold of that info, and our hard-earned cash.
